Dear Colleagues,

We are pleased to announce that COLLEGE DAYS 2010 will take place in Berlin on Wednesday, October 6th and in Munich on Thursday, October 7th. Both cities are vibrant cultural hubs and home to many thousands of university, college, and high school-students. In addition, the cities conveniently combine coverage of both Northern and Southern Germany.

For the past 12 years, we have used our expertise to successfully organize the College Day fairs. Our well-developed contacts and involvement in higher education in Germany enable us to bring together an effective mix of multi-national universities and colleges offering various academic and vocational programs with motivated high-school and college students interested in studying abroad.

Together with our partners in the public and private sectors, we will be publicizing COLLEGE DAYS nation-wide in the following ways: directly working with institutions of secondary and tertiary education to get the word out; through international networks and counselling centers, and through advertisements in selected national and local media both on the internet and in print.

An accompanying program of presentations on study systems, funding, and visa questions will create an interesting and valuable framework for the events. In addition, we will again invite exhibitors to give individual presentations on their institutions and programs during both fairs.

In order to help exhibitors with logistical arrangements in the two cities, we will negotiate special hotel rates and offer reduced fares for the flight between Munich and Berlin through STA Travel, Berlin.

As the fairs approach, more detailed information regarding the fairs will be available on www.collegeday.de.

We look forward to seeing you in Germany at the 13th International College Days!

Yours sincerely,

Dr. Kurt Gamerschlag, CollegeCouncil Director and Flor Fernandez Kiuppis, Fair Manager
