CIS Child Protection Workshop

Tim Gerrish OBE, is a highly committed and commended International Child Protection expert with extensive experience in advising on child safeguarding risk management issues and investigations. He specialises in advising international school leaders, conducting audits and evaluations as well as developing and delivering top class training on child safeguarding for international schools and high profile organisations. Tim is Founder and Director of International Child Protection Advisors (ICPA) Ltd, his background is in law enforcement with 30 years experience as a detective with Scotland Yard in London. He was also head of the UK’s National Criminal Intelligence Service Serious Sex Offender unit before working with the Child Exploitation and Online Protection centre (CEOP). Tim is an accredited consultant to the Council of International Schools (CIS), Council of British International Schools (COBIS) and Federation of British International Schools in SE Asia (FOBISIA).

Dr. Nancy Fajman received her Master of Public Health and Medical Doctor degrees from Emory University School of Medicine. She has spent the last 20 years as both a general pediatrician - following children in the primary care clinic for routine development and care – and as a physician who subspecializes in the evaluation of child maltreatment. She especially enjoys teaching about these topics and helping others understand and address the professional issues involved in the assessment of child abuse and neglect.

Dr. Douglas Walker has worked with the international school community for ten of his last nineteen years of practice as a Clinical Psychologist. He received his doctorate from the University of North Texas where he participated in the emerging field of Psychoneuroimmunology, studying the impact of stress upon the human immune system. In response to Hurricane Katrina, Dr. Walker created Project Fleur-de-lis, New Orleans’s largest school-based mental health program devoted to students struggling emotionally and academically in the years following the storm and destruction. Dr. Walker has served as technical advisor to the US State Department’s Office of Overseas Schools in Africa and Guyana’s Ministry of Health to assist in the dissemination of trauma focused, evidence-based practices. Over the past several years, he has held a close relationship with the Association of International Schools in Africa (AISA), functioning as a technical advisor and trainer for the implementation of trauma-informed treatment, crisis response and programming for over 75 international schools in 35 countries in sub-Saharan Africa. Dr. Walker recently completed a Fulbright Specialist Scholarship in Fukushima City, Japan where he conducted lectures in disaster mental health, and collaborative research into peer-to-peer support post 2011 Tōhoku earthquake, tsunami and level 7 meltdown at the Fukushima Daiichi Nuclear Power Plant.
Susie March has worked exclusively with international schools for the past ten years. She has a wealth of experience delivering both to students and staff in schools and through professional development workshops across the world. Her holistic and developmentally-appropriate approach to Child Protection through Comprehensive Sexuality Education (CSE) is specific to internationals schools and the unique cultures within which they operate. Susie works with students to empower them to take responsibility for their own sexual health, social and emotional well-being by providing the information, skills and values needed to build healthy, happy and respectful relationships. Cultural sensitivities to sexuality education is improved by parental involvement, facilitated through her parent information sessions. She supports and works with school administrations to improve teacher training standards and professional development. Her objective is to help teachers confidently implement an age-appropriate, whole-school approach, to CSE. She has also worked on policy development, curriculum planning and implementation.

Dr Joe Sullivan is a Registered Forensic Psychologist (Health Professions Council). He holds a PhD in Forensic Psychology, Master’s Degree in Criminology, Post-Graudate Diploma in Psychology, Bachelor of Arts Degree in applied Social Sciences, and a Certificate of Qualification in Social Work. Dr. Sullivan is an honorary lecturer in Forensic Psychology at the University of Birmingham, UK. For the past 20 years, Dr. Sullivan has worked with police officers, social workers, probation officers, faith groups and educationalists to provide insights into the motivations, thoughts and behaviours of child sex offenders. He is regularly commissioned to undertake assessments for the Social Service Departments, Probation Services, Churches and Education departments and has been called as an expert witness to give evidence to criminal, civil and family courts. Dr. Sullivan has worked extensively in law enforcement since 1996, assisting UK and European police forces with investigations into the sexually motivated abduction, murder and assault of children. Since 2006, Dr. Sullivan has also been the Forensic Psychologist in the Behaviour Analysis Unit in the Child Exploitation and Online Protection Centre (CEOP). He has received a Chief Constables Commendation for his contribution to the investigation into the sexually motivated abduction and murder of a child in 2001.

Jordan Greenbaum is a child abuse physician from the United States who received her degree from Yale School of Medicine.
